PIANOS.

GAINED FIRST PREMIUM FOR GREATEST merit at the New Orleans Cotton Centennial and WORLD'S Exposition for refined and wonderful power of tone, elegance of design, and superb finish. Only piano endorsed by United States commissioners, from each of the States. Cases finest carved, rosewood finish—finest imported double repeating action—three strings throughout of best patent steel wire—keys best ivory. Our new patent steel tuning device, instead of wood, is the greatest invention ever made in pianos. It consists of stationary STEEL tuning pins that are set in a mold and molten STEEL is run round the pins keeping them solidly in place. A thimble or shell pin is made to exactly fit the stationary pin revolving therein; thus the strings wind round the pins. After the strings are properly stretched the piano can never get out of tune, the rest plank being of STEEL not affected by extremes of climate. This will be so appreciated by all musicians in city or country. It will stand twenty years without tuning and is good for 100. No other piano has this improvement.
Great strength and durability is another advantage. In other pianos holes are bored in wooden boards and tuning pins inserted. The pins turn round in this board and cannot stand permanently in tune, and it often cracks, splits, dries out, becoming utterly, totally and entirely worthless as a musical instrument. Our STEEL tuning device is in no way affected by such casualities, and the sounding board is so constructed that our pianos can never become thin or metallic in tone. They are always in tune and the expense of tunning is saved. This patent alone is worth millions and makes our piano the greatest in the world. Prices are no higher than other pianos. Buying direct from us, the largest manufacturers, you save $100 or $200—dealers' profits. Don't mind the ominous growlings of dealers and agents, who see their chances of selling a poor piano at a big profit of $200—slipping away—pity them.
We guarantee our pianos ten years. 200 styles. We have put our prices at lowest bed-rock for Cash.
A $600 Piano for $259.50; a $900 Piano for $297 50; a $1200 Piano for $375.50; a $1500 Piano for $475.50.
Upright Cabinet Grands, with stool and rubber cover shipped on board cars at S. F., to any part of the United States, Canada, or Mexico. Our terms are cash with order. If not as represented money returned. We occassionally have good second-hand pianos, made over at $100 to $300, which we take in part payment for our own. Write or call for catalogue, free.

THE KEPT PROMISE.

In the modern city of Khorassan,
Adjudging the people from his divan,
Sat Omar, the pitiless, haughty khan.

He had sentenced assassin, knave and thief,
And he called to his guard with order brief:
"Now bring to me hither the vizier chief

"Who dared defy my bidding. He
Who let from his camp my foe go free,
Because he had shared his salt, shall see

"Thus the man who can break his promise, led
By a fancied duty, nor risk instead
Life rather than do it, must lose his head."

The vizier was summoned. With hurried words
He told how a chief of the hostile Kurds,
Who seemed but a shepherd of flocks and herds,

Had come to his tent, his eyeballs dim
Through hunger, and gaunt to every limb.
"What could I but break my bread with him?"

The face of the khan grew wroth; his eye
Flashed fire; he deigned but curt reply:
"The soldier who breaks his word must die!"

No pallor the vizier's cheek o'erspread;
On his bosom he only dropped his head;
"It is fate, it is fate!" he grimly said.

"I am ready, O master, to meet the worst
But not till your kindness grants me first
A vessel of water to quench my thirst.

"Shall the scimitar stay till I drink?" Quick o'er
The forehead of Omar, so harsh before,
Dawned something like pity: "Till then, no more."

The water was brought. The vizier's brow
Shone brighter. "We all of us heard you vow
'Till then.' Your promise is pledged me now!"

Then he dashed on the ground the goblet. "So,
You have snared me, knave!" said the khan.
"But no—
I never will break a promise—Go!"
—Margaret J. Preston in Philadelphia Ledger.

TAMING OF THE SHREW.

"That's just like you, Eliphalet Emmons!" said Mrs. Emmons sharply. "Comin' in with them muddy feet over my new scrubbed floor! Didn't ye never learn what door mats was for?"

Mr. Emmons, a meek looking, bald headed little man, recoiled from the magnetic force of his wife's words as if they had been so many whip lashes.

"I didn't know the roads was muddy," apologized he.

"As if they could help bein' muddy arter that there thunder shower!" retorted Mrs. Emmons. "A man is the untidiest creetur! I've been cleanin' the settin' room closet today, Eliphalet, and I've found two pair o' mildewed boots, an odd slipper, a broken umbereller and a nasty smellin' old pipe. What ye think o' that?"

"I'm very sorry, Sarah," said Mr. Emmons, mechanically ducking his head at each count of the indictment, "but I wasn't aware they'd all conglomerated like that. I s'pose I didn't know where else to put 'em."

"Humph!" said Mrs. Emmons scornfully.

"Is supper ready, Sarah?"

"Supper, indeed!" snorted Mrs. Emmons. "I s'pose you think I hain't nothin' to do but cook. I guess if you'd did the day's house cleanin' I've wrastled through you wouldn't feel much like roastin' over the stove. You'll find some cold pork and rye bread and butter in the milk room, and I guess you can make out to draw a glass o' hard cider for yourself."

Hapless Eliphalet slunk into the milk room, followed by the shrill cry:

"Now, mind you don't grease everything up!"

And as he dipped his cubes of salt pork into the mustard pot, and spread the scant allowance of butter over the slabs of heavy rye bread, he thought dolefully of Peter Rigney's one storied cabin, that he had just passed on the Twickenham road, with its cheery interior view of a well spread table, a smoking teapot, blue edged china, and a bunch of lilacs in the center. Mrs. Rigney was laughing merrily and the little flock of children were running in and out, as if life were made for enjoyment, not discipline.

"I sort o' think," pondered he, "that it's most a pity that we never had no children, for all Sarah thinks it a dispensation o' Providence! P'raps she wouldn't 'a been so awful particular if she'd had a lot o' young 'uns around under foot."

When he came out again Mrs. Emmons was diligently scouring at the fire irons, and seemed in no mood for conversation.

"Where's the weekly paper?" he ventured to ask.

"I hain't seen it," said Mrs. Emmons.

"I wonder where the second volume of 'African Travels' has got to?" he next hesitated.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Emmons, "and I don't care. It strikes me you'd better be a-travelin' out to the barn to see arter the cattle."

"I've done that," said Eliphalet with a sigh. "I—why, hello! Who's this 'ere? As true as I live and breathe it's Squire Perkins, with a little boy. One o' your grandchildren, squire? How d'ye do? how d'ye do?"

He stood smiling broadly in the doorway, while Mrs. Emmons flew to hide her housecleaning dishabille, with a brass andiron in one hand and the polishing powder in the other, and the squire heavily alighted from his buggy.

"No, Mr. Emmons, no," said he. "It ain't no kith or kin o' mine. Pretty little fellow, ain't it? Just 6 year old, and as tough as an oak knot. Wal, it's Seba Brown's orphan."

"Je-rusalem!" ejaculated Eliphalet. "You don't mean to tell me Cappen Seba Brown is dead?"

"The Black Eyed Susan and all aboard of her was wrecked off Cape Hatteras last month," said the squire impressively. "And here's this child with no one to care for him; and the parson, says he, 'If this ain't a cl'ar pintin' o' Providence I dunno what is!' he says, says he. 'Go you,' says he, 'and see if Brother and Sister Emmons won't take him and bring him up.' So here I be."

Eliphalet Emmons looked kindly at the cherry cheeked little lad, with the hazel eyes and curling brown hair.

"Would ye like to come and live with me, sonny?" said he.

"Yes, I would," promptly answered the child, putting his plump hand in the farmer's horny palm.

"What's your name?" said Mr. Emmons.

"Benjamin Brown," answered the boy.

"Speaks up like a man, don't he?" chuckled Mr. Emmons. "Well, o' course, squire, I couldn't do nothin' without consultin' Sarah about it. But I guess you may leave him here over night, and we'll take the matter into consideration."

So the squire drew away. Little Benjamin snuggled close up to his new friend.

"I think you are very nice," said he. "Have you dot any piczure books?"

At that moment the door burst open, and in walked Mrs. Emmons, grim as Stonehenge.

"Eliphalet," said she, "hev ye took leave of your senses?"

"Eh?" stammered the farmer.

"What do we want of a great, hungry, crockery breaking, orchard robbing boy? Hain't I got enough to do a'ready? And hain't you got plenty o' use for your money without adoptin' every young pauper in town? Send that child away before he is an hour older."

"Where?" asked Eliphalet.

"That's your business, not mine. I didn't take him in."

"I don't know of no place unless it's back to Squire Perkins', and that's two miles off."

"I guess it won't hurt him to walk two mile," said Mrs. Emmons crisply.

"But he don't know the way."

"Let him ask it then. He's got a tongue in his head, hain't he?"

"Wait till after supper, Sarah, and I'll go with him," interceded Mr. Emmons.

"Supper! We've had all the supper we're goin' to hev in this house!" snapped Mrs. Emmons.

"Well, well," said the husband, "let him set down and rest a spell, and I'll go out and pick some o' them yaller Antwerp raspberries and we'll give him a bowl o' bread and milk."

"The pans is all set for cream."

"T'won't do no hurt to disturb just one."

Mrs. Emmons stood watching as her husband took a little splint basket and went off toward the stone walled garden beyond the well. Then she turned to the little boy who sat in the big chair, swinging his plump legs and solemnly regarding her.

"Are you going to be my mamma?" said he inquisitively.

"No," she answered—and yet there was a something that stirred strangely in her heart at the soft, maternal word—"no, I ain't."

"Don't you like little boys?" he asked.

"I don't think nothin' about it one way or the other," retorted she. "Where's your cap? Just you take it, and go back along the road as straight as you can go, and don't stop till you git to Squire Perkins', and tell him we don't want no boys here."

Little Benjamin hesitated.

"I'd like to stay," said he, "and play with that nice yellow eyed cat. I'm tired—and I'm pretty hungry, too. I wish I had a mother somewheres!"

"Here's a slice o' bread and butter for you," said Mrs. Emmons, "with a taste o' currant jell a-top of it. Now go!

"Because," she said to herself as the little fellow trudged down the path toward the road, biting into his slice of bread and butter as he went, "Eliphalet's that fond o' children he won't never give up the notion of keepin' the child till he's gone for good and all."

When Mr. Emmons came in, the little basket heaped high with golden "Antwerps," his wife sat knitting by the window and there was no one else in the room.

"Where's the boy?" he asked, looking around.

"Gone."

"Gone where?"

"Back to Squire Perkins' o' course. Where else should he go? I can't hev him here."

Emmons set down the basket and heaved a deep sigh. He knew from years of experience that all remonstrance would be in vain.

"It's jest as you say, Sarah," said he.

Mrs. Emmons was a little disappointed. She had not expected Eliphalet to give up the matter so peaceably.

"He was a bright lookin' child," said she.

"Yes, he was," acquiesced Emmons.

"But children are a sight o' trouble."

"I s'pose they be."

"Cap'n Seba Brown was a clever sort o' feller," said Mrs. Emmons. "I knowed him when he was a boy. He married a pretty black eyed girl up Edinburgh way. How bad they would 'a felt if they'd knowed their little boy was on the town!"

"I guess likely they would," said Eliphalet, slowly rising. "I think, Sarah, I'll go down to the store a spell. It's sort o' lonesome here."

A sort of pang pierced Mrs. Emmons' heart as she watched him stride slowly down the hill.

"It is lonesome," she thought, "and I'm too tired to be much company for him. I wonder if he'd be more contented if we had a lively little feller around like Bennie Brown. I wonder how far the child's got? Two miles is a pretty consid'able spell for a little creetur' like that. P'raps he's got most as far as the quarry road— My goodness alive!" she cried, jumping suddenly from her chair as a ghastly recollection presented itself to her mind; "I never once thought he might stray into that old quarry road, where a false step might pitch him down fifty feet among the sharp rocks. And such a pretty little chap as he is, too! I wonder I never thought o' that!"

She caught her gingham sunbonnet from its pegs and ran out into the purple softness of the dewy twilight.

At the end of the lane she saw her husband leaning over the bars and staring at the pale crescent of the new moon.

"Eliphalet," said she, "I'm mortal 'fraid the little boy'll stray into that quarry road."

"Je-rusalem!" uttered Mr. Emmons. "Let's go arter him! Or stay—you're a better walker than I be. You go down the road as fast as ever you can, and I'll wait here."

"And s'pose I find him, what'll I do?"

"Why, bring him back here!"

"Eh?"

"Bring him back here!" reiterated Mrs. Emmons. "He's a pretty, frank spoken boy. I guess we can manage some way."

She stood in the path, watching and waiting.

Parson Earrett had always preached how merciful the good Lord was. Surely he would not allow an innocent child like that to wander to his own destruction!

"But," thought Mrs. Emmons, wringing her hands, "if he has strayed into that old road—and the fences are down in more places than one—I shall always feel as if I had sent him to his death!"

She could not stand there a prey to those remorseful thoughts. She hurried back to the house, lighted the cheerful lamps, set out bread and milk and a loaf of election cake on the table and kindled a fire to make the kettle boil.

"Eliphalet's right," she said. "The old house would be a different house if there was a child running around it. I do—hope"—

"Here we be, mother!" called a loud, hearty voice, and once more Mrs. Emmons' indurated heart leaped up in answer to the words "Me and little Benny! He was settin' a-cryin' under the elderberry bushes by the Methodist burying ground. He'd lost his way, poor little feller! And wasn't he glad to see me, though? Here we be!"

"Where's the cat?" joyfully cried Benny, running into the room as if certain of a welcome.

"Benny," said Mrs. Emmons coloring, "do—do you think you could learn to call me mother? If you can I'll try and do the best I can by you!"

"Mother!" spoke up the child, lifting his rosy lips to kiss her. "And is he my father, too?"

The middle aged couple looked at each other; their hard faces softened.

"Eliphalet," said Mrs. Emmons, "we'll keep the child."

"It shall be as you say," acquiesced Eliphalet.

They kept him, and little Benny revolutionized the whole house.

"Sister Emmons comes far more regularly to church of late," said the parson. "She's so interested in the progress that child makes in Sunday school. And it seems as if her soul had, somehow, woke up."

"Our house is a different house," said Eliphalet. "Sarah's left off frettin' and took to laughin', and it's all Benny's doin'. There ain't no sunshine in life like a happy, healthy child. And she's even talkin' about adopting a little girl from the asylum to keep him company. Says it does her good to hear children hollerin' 'Mamma! mamma!' about the house!"

"Bless the Lord for all his mercies!" solemnly spoke Parson Barrett.

And in her heart Sarah Emmons echoed his words.—Helen Forrest Graves in Philadelphia Saturday Night.

An Intelligent Baboon.

Jack, the baboon, so well known to all who have ever passed through the Uitenhage (Cape Colony) railway station, has gone to that bourne from which no baboon ever returns. Jack was one of the most intelligent specimens of the ape tribe ever captured, and he was regarded as quite a regular railway employe at Uitenhage. He took his turn at working the signals and shoving trolleys about. When told to do so he would go to his master's cottage, hunt for and find any article required, and then after carefully locking the door he would remove the key, and bring to his master both it and the article he had been sent for. His master had lost both his legs and consequently found Jack a valuable helpmate. The baboon was noted through the district as a fair lightweight boxer, and he had also been trained to use the singlestick with singular adroitness.—Colonies and India.

Bishop Rundle.

Queen Caroline pressed him to tell her of her faults.

"If it so please your majesty," said he, "I will tell you of one. Persons come from all parts of the kingdom to see your majesty when you attend Whitehall chapel. It is therefore to be lamented that you talk so much to the king during divine service."

"Thank you, my lord bishop," said the queen. "Now tell me another of my faults."

"That I will do with great pleasure," said he, "when you have corrected that I have just mentioned."—New York Ledger.

To Escape a Tornado.

Gen. W. E. Hazen says you can escape a tornado, as you see the funnel advancing, by running to the north or northwest of it. On the east and south of it there are indrafts extending quite a distance.—Philadelphia Record.

The following item we clip from the Petaluma Courier of a late date:

The nomination of Judge Dougherty from Petaluma by the Republicans will be quite satisfactory to the majority of people about here. A move is to be made to take the judgeships out of politics. This is a move which we could well afford to support, and so far as principle is concerned, we can well afford to take all the municipal and county offices out of politics. What great influence can a Coroner have on the principles of a party whose foundation is based only on the policy of general government.

We agree with the Courier that the judiciary should be kept out of politics. The nomination of Judge Dougherty by the Republicans was simply an endorsement of a faithful, learned and conscientious Judge, who has given satisfaction to the people regardless of political faith, and we are sure without meaning any disrespect to the other talented candidates for Superior Judge, that the people of Sonoma Valley concur with the sentiments expressed by the Courier, which is published where Judge Dougherty is best known. That his judicial work has been most satisfactory, no better evidence is wanted than the fact that no word of criticism has ever been heard either from the bar or from litigants. At the last election Judge Dougherty was elected for a short unexpected term of two years, and in view of his many excellent qualities as a Judge, the people of Sonoma Valley, with few exceptions, are of the opinion that he is entitled to a re-election.

THE Healdsburg Enterprise in its issue of last week speaks of Sonoma as being a sleepy little town. If the editor of the Enterprise will take the trouble to pay this place a visit we are sure he will do us the justice to state that Sonoma is far from being sleepy. The town is wide awake. No better evidence of this fact is wanting than the number of two-story brick and stone buildings—and private residences—now in course of construction, our recently organized fire company, our new fruit driers, well graded and well sprinkled streets, a broad gauge railroad, which cost the people of the town several thousand dollars for rights of way, and a plaza which is being beautified year by year. Sonoma is anything but a sleepy town at the present time. The old town long since woke up from her Rip Van Winkle sleep, and is one of the most wide awake interior towns of its size in the State.

JUDGE J. A. BARHAM, a leading member of the Santa Rosa bar, has been unanimously nominated by the Republicans for Congress from this district. Judge Barham is undoubtedly as strong as any man the Republican party could have selected for the position. He is in the prime of life, a man of great ability and is a foeman worthy of any man's steel. With T. J. Geary on the Democratic ticket and Barham as his opponent, it is pretty safe to predict that Sonoma county's interests will be keenly looked after in Washington, it matters not which of the two is elected.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The Bills, the Bills, the Extravagant Bills.

The Supervisors convened at the Court House, Santa Rosa, in regular monthly session on Monday, September 1st. All the members were present and Supervisor Allen presided.

The Road Overseers reports took up the greater part of the day's session, the following bills being allowed: D. W. Long, Vallejo, $535; W. F. Harris, Washington, $90.95; James Patrick, Knight's Valley, $29; Gallant Rains, Petaluma, $271.10; John Johnson, Bloomfield, $249.50; H. A. Russell, Fulton, $1,004.83; C. Y. TUESDAY, September 2d.

The usual monthly bills were allowed, after which the protest of Doctor La Rue, who kicked because his bill for $100 for performing an autopsy on the body of John Cunningham, near Windsor, several months ago, had been cut down to $20 by the Board, and not without effect, for on motion of Supervisor Clark the Board, with that reckless extravagance which has characterized all its actions in the past, allowed the Doctor his $100, and he took his departure smiling.

WEDNESDAY, September 3d.

More bills, bills, bills, bills. A large number of additional bills were allowed during the morning session, after which the Board adjourned for the purpose of inspecting the County Farm and Hospital.

THURSDAY, September 4th.

Thursday, October 9th, was set as the time for further hearing of the viewers appointed to view and lay out a private road in Sonoma township, as petitioned for by Ellen F. Crilly.

The same day was also set as the time for hearing the report of the viewers on the road petitioned for by Jas. Little of Vallejo township.

C. M. Jacobs of Santa Rosa was placed on the indigent list and allowed $10 per month.

Mr. Smith moved that the matter of J. Watson's petition for a change in the Bodega road be dismissed, the Board having no jurisdiction in the matter as the petition had not been presented in proper form. So ordered.

The motion denying the petition for the division of Salt Point township into two road districts was rescinded, it appearing to the Board that the former action was hasty and the division prayed for was authorized.

SATURDAY, September 6th.

The request of A. H. Frasier to maintain gates on the road through his ranch for 60 days was granted.

The bill of the King Iron Bridge Company in the sum of $114 for repairs on the Cloverdale bridge was rejected, it appearing that the same was not a legal charge against the county.

Scrofula All His Life.

I consider my cure by S. S. S. one of the most wonderful on record. I had the worst type of Scrofula from my infancy until I was 22 years of age. My whole young life was embittered and made miserable by the loathsome disease. I not only suffered from Scrofula, but was so marked that I was ashamed to associate with, and was advoided by, my playmates and fellow workmen. I tried every known patent medicine, and was first and last attended by more than a dozen reputable physicians, but in spite of all, the disease continued to grow worse. About four years ago a friend from Pittsburg advised me to take S. S. S., which I did, and after taking seven bottles I was cured sound and well. The old skin peeled off and was replaced by a new skin, as smooth and free from blemish as any person. I have had no return or symptom of the disease.

Put on the Brakes.

If you find you are going down hill in point of health. Failing strength, impaired digestion and assimilation are the marks of decline. Check these and other indications of premature decay with the grand vitalizer and restraining tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Beginning at the fountain head, the stomach, the bitters remedies its inefficiency, corrects its errors, and sets it vigorously at work. The digestive organ is thus enabled to thoroughly separate from the food its nutritive principles, which the blood assimilating, is enriched. Thus is the system nourished, and being nourished strengthened, and abnormal waste of its tissues stayed. Appetite the power to rest well, a regular habit are also re-established, and the various functions move once more in their natural and healthful groove. The Bitters moreover, is a specific for and preventive of malarial complaints, rheumatism, biliousness and kidney troubles.

Red Wine Grapes.

It is rumored that one large wine manufacturer of Napa is offering $15 per ton for good, sound wine grapes, delivered in that city. Whether such is the case or not, there is no question of a doubt but what grapes for red wine will be very scarce, and that a good price will be offered before the season is far advanced. Nearly all the wine grapes in Livermore Valley will be dried this season. One man contracted for San Francisco parties large quantities of dried grapes, making a commission of $600 himself and allowing the producers a good figure for their product.—St Helena Star.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. Rev. Wm. Church of Trinity Episcopal church, San Francisco, will hold services in San Luis school house next Sunday at 11 A. M. At three o'clock on the afternoon of that day he will baptise any children that may be present for that purpose.

Mrs. F. McG. Martin, Superintendent of Schools, visited the various Sonoma Valley schools last week. Mrs. Martin has made one of the most efficient School Superintendents that has ever held the office in this county. The lady is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket.

At a special meeting of the City Trustees, held last Wednesday afternoon, the tax levy for Sonoma was placed at 50 cents on the $100 of valuation. As the total property valuation for 1890 is $354,918 the levy will realize $1774 59. Add to this the amount to be collected for poll taxes and licenses, which we may safely put down in round figures at $1100, will give a total revenue of $2874 50 on which to run the city government the next twelve months.

The City Trustees held a special session last Wednesday to consider the application of R. D. Moore for a special liquor license, Trustees Poppe, Wegner, Litzius and Weyl being present. After considerable discussion Trustee Litzius proposed to have ordinance No. 34 amended so as to permit the clerk, upon payment to him of $2.50, to issue a special license to any person to keep open his bar or saloon after 10:30 P. M. on a certain day. Upon being put to a vote Trustee Litzius amendment was unanimously adopted, and the City Clerk instructed to have an ordinance prepared embracing such amendment.

A large number of Sonoma Valley people attended the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco last Monday and Tuesday. Sonoma was almost deserted on the latter day. The celebration was one of the grandest ever held in this State, and those who failed to attend missed a treat of a lifetime. The Native Sons made a magnificient showing in the parade and dispensed hospitality at their various headquarters with a lavish hand. A feature of the celebration was the marked attention paid to the members of the press by the Native Sons Press Committee, who did everything in their power to make the stay of the rural journalist in the city a pleasant one.

John Guifoyle, who has been lying in the Napa Jail ever since his discharge from San Quentin a few months ago, where he had served a five year sentence for stealing horses from Wm. Bibler of Lakeville, has been discharged from custody. He was arrested the second time for defacing the brands on the stolen horses. Many prominent people in this valley and Napa, thinking the young man had already been sufficiently punished, interested themselves in his behalf and petitioned that the second charge against him be dismissed with the result that he is now a free man. It is to be hoped that he will now become a good and useful citizen, as he is the sole support of an aged mother.

Cowardly Attempt at Highway Robbery.

Last Wednesday evening about seven o'clock as Mrs. J. J. Law and Mrs. A. J. Hubach of Glen Ellen were out walking, they were confronted by two mounted highwaymen in the vicinity of Warfield station and commanded to halt and throw up their hands. The ladies instead of obeying the command commenced to scream for help. The ruffians, seeing that they were about to be foiled in their attempt at robbery, became very obscene in their language and endeavored to ride the ladies down. In this they would have been successful had it not been for a deep ditch running along the road. The ladies scrambled over this and the highwaymen's horses were unable to follow. During the retreat Mrs. Law fell and was severely injured. The screams of the ladies finally brought assistance from a neighboring ranch and the cowardly ruffians sought flight in the approaching darkness of evening. The same men had stopped two farmers near Drummond's station only a short time before meeting the ladies, but the farmers being resolute men succeeded in putting the highwaymen to flight. If the culprits are caught by the citizens up that way they will be sevely dealt with.

Napa-street Race Course.

For some time past, in direct violation of a city ordinance against fast driving, the streets of Sonoma, and Napa street in particular, have been converted into a veritable race course by reckless drivers of go-carts, buggies and other light vehicles. Even within the past week several ladies and children have narrowly escaped being run over while crossing the streets. If a stop is not put to fast driving in the town it is only a question of time when some one will be run over and killed. There is no occasion for fast driving within the city limits and we trust an example will be made of the next offender. The law governing fast driving is very plain. Section 3, ordinance No. 3, reads as follows: "Any person or persons who shall be found riding or driving faster than eight miles an hour on any street, alley or thoroughfare of the city shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $5 or imprisoned not to exceed three days, or both fine and imprisonment." The city has its ordinances. Why pass them if they are not to be enforced?

Democratic Meeting.

The first political meeting of the campaign in Sonoma was held at Union Hall last Saturday evening. The meeting was called to order by Shubrick Norris, who in a few appropriate remarks introduced the first speaker of the evening, Hon. Robt. Howe, Democratic nominee for State Senator. The gentleman was received with rounds of applause and at the conclusion of his speech it was plain to be seen that he had made a favorable impression. When it comes to speech making Mr. Howe does not attempt to soar to the heavens, pluck the stars and cast them at the feet of his hearers. On the contrary, he is a plain, matter of fact talker and treated the various subjects dwelt upon in a common-sense manner. At the conclusion of his remarks T. J. Geary, Democratic nominee for Congress, was introduced and entertained the audience, which was a large one, with an hour-and-a-half speech. He was well received and at times his remarks created considerable enthusiasm among the Democrats. Mr. Geary was not at his best last Saturday evening, but for all that he did not weary his listeners, although many present were Republicans. When he concluded he was loudly applauded and the meeting stood adjourned.

Value of the Local Paper.

It is a singular but unquestionable fact that even the most sagacious and public sprited of business men in some communities do not seem adequately to appreciate the value of the local newspaper as an agency of advertising the business interests and importance of the town in which it is published. There are to be found a very considerable proportion of business men who are ready to give their time and labor to the organization and maintenance of boards of trade or any other movement for the attraction of outside capital, and whom it is not difficult to induce to subscribe money for the establishment of promising enterprises, but nevertheless contribute little or nothing to a means of greater importance and efficiency in the building up of their town—the support and improvement of its newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Cornelius celebrated the 12th aniversary of the birth of their daughter Matilda at their residence Tuesday afternoon of last week. A number of little friends were invitted and delicious refreshment were served. Miss Matilda received many handsome and useful presents.

Mrs. McWilliams, after several days visit with her friend Mrs. J. B. Small returned to her home in Southern California last week.

GRAPES.

The Old, Old Story Annually Dished Up to Keep Prices Down.

ED. INDEX TRIBUNE:

Kindly allow me space in your valuable columns, as I know you are anxious to help the farmers in Sonoma Valley. The grape season is near at hand, and as yet no prices have been named. The cellarmen and buyers are maintaining that wine is way down, that the cellars are full and so on. Now, this is the old, old story annually dished up to keep grapes down. Although wine made right here in Sonoma Valley from one to six years old, has been sold by the city merchants within the past few months at from 25 to 50 cents per gallon, they continue to oppress the producer by forcing prices down to less than ten cents a gallon when they desire to purchase his cellar. The Labor Unions are agitating "more pay for the workingmen," but how about the producer of wine grapes? Now, Mr. Editor, if you will ask any reliable vineyardist the cost for proper cultivation of his vines you will find that the average cost is $12.50 per acre. This includes wages at $25 per month and board, the maintenance of two good farm horses, wear and tear of farming implements, pruning, sulphuring, suckering, tying up and picking. Then there is the loss and anxiety attendant upon frosts, mildew, sunburning and insect pests. It will readily be seen that $20 per ton is none too much for the cellarman to pay the grape grower, and I think the merchant would find that if the above price was paid for good and carefully picked grapes that it would give satisfaction generally and act as an encouragement to vineyardists to grow grapes of the best varieties.

The grape crop of 1890, in spite of what some say, will not be a large one. Phylloxera has destroyed many an acre of vines in this valley and many farmers have set out fruit trees and let his grape crop take care of itself.

City merchants, we will admit, have their troubles also, but it is scarcely fair of them to grind the growers down as they have of late, and they will learn at no distant day, if they persist in their present course, how they have cut their own throats when there are no longer any vineyards to buy from and their cooperage is empty.

Now, fruit culture is far less laborious and much more profitable than grape-growing. Every year the demand for canned and dried fruits is on the increase. Europe cannot grow fruit enough for its millions, so it is steadily buying from the United States, and it is only a question of time when syndicates will be operating canneries and fruit driers all over this State. These syndicates are already buying up many of our principal industries. If the monied men of Sonoma Valley would join hands and erect a canning establishment they would not only be public benefactors but would reap large returns on their investment.

Sonoma Valley is rich in railway facilities and can ship to all parts of the country without breaking bulk. Two enterprising men in Sonoma have started a dryer. That is a step in the right direction and we wish them every success.

If the farmer can only get fair prices for all his products, wages and everything else would rise in proportion, but so long as the money is in the hands of the minority, who dictate all prices, there will be grinding toil and pinching care for the masses.

A Suggestion.

EDITOR INDEX-TRIBUNE:—At the grand parade in San Francisco last Tuesday the Sonoma county boys compared favorably in appearance with those of any other Parlor in the State. They looked as well and were as neatly dressed and uniformed as any of the rest. All of the Sonoma County Parlors, except Glen Ellen Parlor, No. 102 and Sonoma, No. 111, had beautiful silk banners, appropriately inscribed, numbered and ornamented. While observing the parade it occurred to my mind sometime to inquire why these two Parlors are still without so useful and almost indispensable an adjunct. It certainly is not a lack of Native Daughters sufficiently accomplished to paint or embroider them, for among Sonoma valley's fair daughters there are artists galore.

I respectfully submit this subject to Juanita Parlor, No. 20, N. D. G. W., for such action as the importance thereof demands, with this single suggestion: That the banner for Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, should have on one side a representation of the raising of the Bear Flag, as true to nature as it is possible from historical sources and records now extant to make it, and on the reverse side a portrait of that distinguished statesman and patriot, our departed friend Gen. M. G. Vallejo.

OUR PIONEERS.

Written for the INDEX-TRIBUNE.

All honor to our Pioneers
Who hither came in days of youth;
These pilgrims of the former years,
Who ever cherished home and truth.

No "Pullman Palaces" had they
To roll them o'er the dreary plains,
They had to work and fight their way
Through summer heat and winter rains.

No troops had they in fancy dress
To guard them from the Redman's hand,
They were in peace and in distress
A fearless, self-sustaining band.

Bound by the links of friendships chains,
Upholding right, expelling wrong,
They bravely crossed the lonely plains
And ever boldly marched along.

Their deeds are far beyond all praise,
Their names will brighten with the years,
Proudly they'll speak in future days
Of CALIFORNIA'S PIONEERS.

HIS MARCHED WITH SHERMAN TO THE SEA.

Trudged all the way on foot, over mountain and through morass, carrying knapsack and gun; slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingering with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change; six months' continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he needs none. He helped save his country, he saved himself! Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For scrofula, in all its myriad forms, the "Discovery" is an unequaled remedy. It cleanses the system of all blood-taints from whatever cause arising, and cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and kindred ailments. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

A Brawny Gargeo at the Helm.

To-day it is raining in torrents. He knows by experience the value of a "Fish Brand Slicker." It is his sole article of dress, and to him worth its weight in gold. Not a dry thread in his drawers, shirt, coat, vest, and pants. He'll tell you tales by the hour of storms lasting days and nights when that "Slicker" made up the whole difference between comfort and misery, and all for a mere trifle from his week's pay. Why don't you buy one for yourself? To realize how little it costs, think how long it lasts. It will outwear four suits of clothes. Better get one to-day, before you forget it. A day's delay may cause a month of sickness, and cost a hundred times the price of a Slicker. Beware of worthless imitations, every garment stamped with the "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.

Born Blindness Preventable.

Statistics taken from the reports of Fuchs, Magnus, Howe and the committee of the Ophthalmological Society of the United Kingdom show that at least 30 per cent. of all blindness in Europe and in this country is caused by preventable disease at birth. The consus of 1880 gives a total of about 50,000 blind in the United States. Of these at least 15,000 have been blind from birth. And yet this disease is well nigh absolutely preventable, and in its incipiency easily curable.

This statement is borne out by facts, as will be seen by reference to the reports of the large lying in hospitals, where the methods of prevention have been in operation. After these means were put in operation there was practically an entire disappearance of the disease. The method consists in wiping the face and lids clean and dry immediately after the umbilical cord is tied. The lids are then opened and one or two drops of a 2 per cent. solution of nitrate of silver are instilled. Except in premature children the reaction from this treatment is very slight.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Warranty.

A story is told of a very skillful repairer who warranted all his work, provided no other workman made the slightest alteration or was allowed to handle it, as from that time forward his warranty ended. In order to know whether a watch had been tampered with he always placed the holding screw and other parts in such a position that if he found those screws or parts in any other position he knew at once that some one had had the movement out of the case or been looking at it. He also had one invariable method of fitting on the hands, fastening the dial plate, etc., which was both sure to "stay put" and enable him to detect any change that had been made.—Jeweler's Circular.

Poison in a Cup of Tea.

A few figures will show how much poison the tea drinker is taking in. Strong tea contains 3 per cent. of theine, which is about three and three-fifths grains to a dram. A teaspoonful of tea is a dram, and hence according to the old rule of a teaspoonful to the cup there would be three and three-fifths grains of theine in a single cup of strong tea. Seven grains will kill a cat, so it would only take two and a half cups to make a fatal dose for a cat.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg's Lecture.

Bricks of Sand.

Something new in the way of brick making has sprung up at St. Joseph, Mich., where the sand of the beach by a chemical process is being turned into brick. They are represented to be superior to pressed brick, and large quantities are being put into fine residences and the fronts of business blocks.—Chicago Times.

Listen.

The person who never made a fool of himself is one who was spared that trouble by an overruling Providence. It is only they who stand that can fall.—Boston Transcript.
